

WHITE GLOVE DELIVERY

Available on Carl's Table CT12 and CT03 orders only

Anthro handles each CT12 and CT03 order with kid gloves, from the time it leaves our dock until it's up and running in its reading room. The table is packed in a custom-designed crate that protects the components and finishes during transit. An Anthro Field Service Engineer meets the shipment at the site dock, delivers it to the reading room, assembles the table, and works with IT staff to install all the equipment.

Best of all, we provide personal fittings for each doctor to show them all the features of the table and how they work. We'll even help them program their preferred sitting, standing, and reclining positions!

One of our friendly Field Service Engineers will personally handle the Carl's Table installation to take the pressure off of you and confirm that the table is performing optimally.

Each Carl's Table is packed in a custom crate and carefully delivered to your customer's site where it's met by Anthro's Field Service Engineer.

The highly technical Carl's Table is then unpacked and delivered to the reading room where it's assembled and tested.

Our Field Service Engineer caps off the installation with a personal Custom Comfort Fitting for each radiologist.

Radiology IT staff will love our design details that help them carefully install and maintain their PACS equipment.
